

Water pipes
were in bad condition

Firefighters struggled to get enough water

New rules for looking after
water pipes

Lots of houses were made of wood

Wooden houses burned very quickly

New houses had to be made of brick and stone

Firefighting
equipment was in short supply

It was difficult to put out
fires once they started

Parishes had to have more
firefighting
equipment

London's
streets were very narrow

Flames could easily spread across the city

Some of London's
streets were made wider

Houses jutted
out very close together

Flames could easily move from house
to house

New rules on the size and shape of houses

